

Where to Go After Disruption

Mel Hamada

Comments

Always practical and excellent information from Mel.

Amazing presentation. I am so thankful to be able to watch all of these videos. They have been so helpful and inspiring!!

Awesome! Thank you!

Comprehensive presentation with practical ideas in mind

Good encouragement and information for the start of the school year.

Good ideas

Great content that provided a different way of thinking as we go back to school.

Great conversations and advice.

Great information!!!

Great overview of many ways to approach back to learning safely and effectively. I appreciate the sharing of effective resources and information sites.

Great resources shared in all of the sessions I have watched. I really hope INSHAPE will leave their resources available throughout the year and not just this week. This would be excellent to keep on the site as we move into this school year. This particular session has a plethora of great resources!

Great resources! Thanks a bunch.

Great thoughts. Thanks for the encouragement!

Honesty with my students (upfront approach) will prepare them rather than stress them.

Normal routine of School and Summer way different than previous year; How are they feeling; emotionally, physically? Ready for learning or stressed and anxious?

Some kids will be ready to physically run, and others mentally depleted.

Brain breaks; how can we help our regular ed. teachers?

I feel encouraged that I can be an important part of the students' re-entry into school. She helped me to think about how each child's summer could be different in many ways. Hopeful to meet their needs by being creative and not fearing failed tries!!! Looking forward to investigating the resources she shared.

I love hearing from the different perspective! Thank you for sharing!

I really enjoyed how she stated we need to reassess how we enter this school year. Ex. We usually ask how was your summer and name one thing you did. That question needs to be modified to ask how did this pandemic or event change your summer? or something like wise. From there building upon the classroom and concepts.

I really enjoyed listening to Mel! She had some great points and ideas for physical education.

I thought Mel had some important key points in her discussion especially in regards to collaboration with colleagues about the what, why, and how to start the school year. With all the uncertainties, communicating and collaborating with your PE staff will be very important. Learning to let go of feeling like you have to get through everything is also important to keep in perspective.

I thought she made some good points, I was hoping for a few more concrete examples from her though.

Love hearing through the lens of Mel how she teaches her students. Great tips and focus when teaching this fall. I will be checking out the resources

Mel - reaffirmed what I think we are all feeling as PE Teachers - it's going to be different and that we need to be willing to take risks, try different ideas and be willing to fail as long as it was with best intentions for our students. Thank you!

Routine video was awesome. Will pass on to my fellow teachers.

she shared some comments about considering our students experiences more which helped and the idea of how we as physical educators can take a leadership role in school

She was such a positive speaker. Makes me excited to start this year off right.

Some really useful tips and possibilities!

Thank you for sharing this information!

Thank you for the info

Thank you for this whole conference. It will help me ease back into the new norm,.

Thank you so much for this! Great resources on the landing page.

Thank you!

thanks

Thanks for the inspiration and resources. Wonderful presentation!!!

Thanks very much! Lots of encouragement and practical tips that made me even more excited to get back to school!

There were so many points that Mel brought up that got me thinking about the school year. I really liked her reminders about school choice in our classrooms, and I appreciated her resources, especially on inquiry. With such a short amount of time, we need to get kids curious and to higher order thinking about our content and how it applies to their lives.

True motivation to stay positive, being realistic about failures and being kind to yourself. Good stuff!

What a wonderful list of additional resources to check out! Thanks for reminding us that we can and should be front and center as a resource for Wellness especially during this time of great change!